BIOGRAPHICAL NOTE

Philip Hanson Hiss was born in Brooklyn, New York, in 1910, but he has long made his home in Connecticut. He has also lived in many parts of the world, including the Netherlands East and West Indies, and has studied art, anthropology, psychology, world history, and colonial government.

At the present time he is employed by the Netherlands Government and expects to be one of the first civilians to return to Java.

His publications include BAIL, Duell, Sloan & Pearce (1941); NETHERLANDS AMERICA, THE DUTCH TERRITORIES IN THE WEST, Duell, Sloan & Pearce (1943); THE NETHERLANDS WEST INDIES, a chapter for THE NETHERLANDS, University of California Press (1943); of which the last two will be published in the fall.

PREFACE

There are certain difficulties inherent in the compilation of a bibliography of English literature of a country whose native tongue is not English, particularly that the various categories will be unequally represented.

This bibliography is no exception. For example, there is only one government publication in English for Curaçao and one for Surinam. A similar deficiency also exists in the field of technical publications. On the other hand, the most exhaustive works on the Bush Negroes of Surinam have been written in English, not Dutch. But there is a disproportionate amount of light travel literature.

The supplement on British Guiana has been included, 1—because Demerara, Berbice, and Essequibo, the British Guiana of today, were first colonized by the Dutch and were not finally ceded to Great Britain until the London Convention of August 13, 1814; 2—because experience in British Guiana in many respects parallels that of Surinam and partially compensates for certain deficiencies in the English literature of the latter country.

As no comprehensive bibliography on the subject has previously been attempted, it is hoped that the present work will provide the key to the rather extensive English literature of Curaçao and Surinam, much of which has been difficult to uncover and, as a result, make these two Netherlands territories, our near-neighbors to the south, better known to the American public.
